Madame Janauschek.

Mme. Janauschek may be said to be the last of the great Gothic geniuses of a rapidly closing era of the drama. Her career in his country, entered upon when she had gathered the most enduring laurels of hisrionism in Europe, has been both an arduous and an honorable one. She has held the legitimate drama up when all the rest of her contemporaries were running to French histerics or English blood-and thunder. Her Lady Macbeth is the grandthunder. Her Lady Macbeth is the grandest of all her powerful impersonations, and yet there was but a beggardly audience to see her last night. No star has a better supporting company than Mme. Janauschek, and to witness the presentation she and her company give of Macbeth is to receive an insight into the great tragedy of "Macbeth" that can not be learned by reading the lines.

"Meg Merrilies" will be repeated to-night, and in "Meg Merrilies," as in other plays in her repertory, Mme. Janauschek is without a peer.
